

In a momentous achievement, Alucor proudly announces the successful attainment of a significant milestone in the UAQ project. Last month, we successfully completed 4 million safe manhours, a testament to our unwavering commitment to safety and excellence.

We would like to express our deep appreciation to the entire site team for upholding the highest Health, Safety, and Environment (HSE) standards throughout this project. Your dedication and hard work have been pivotal in ensuring the well-being of our team members and contributing to the overall success and reputation of the project.

A special thanks goes to the project team and management for their continuous support in implementing our robust HSE system. Your guidance and commitment have fostered an environment where safety is deeply ingrained into our operations, allowing us to achieve this remarkable milestone.

We are proud to share that our exceptional HSE performance has been recognized and appreciated by our client and the project owner. This recognition serves as a testament to our high standards and the collective efforts of our team.

As we celebrate this achievement, let us reiterate our commitment to prioritizing safety and maintaining outstanding HSE standards. Together, we can create a safe working environment and strive for even greater milestones on our project journey.

Congratulations to each and every one of you on this remarkable accomplishment. Your dedication has made us all proud, and we encourage you to keep up the excellent work!
